THE GRIEF GROUP
A PARADOX

The world looks the same
But the change is profound.
Tears falling on granite
Don’t make a sound.

Desperate, heartsick,
Consumed by regret.
Scared to remember,
Afraid we’ll forget.

We turn to each other
And find we’ve been blessed
When twice the grief shared
Becomes less.

1999