THE SURVIVORS

You will know us.
We will be wearing pink.
We each remember the phone call that rocked our world
The day we became members of the club
No woman wants to join
And can never resign from.
We have learned compassion,
To read the fear in another's eyes,
To hug, to console, to encourage,
To tell everyone who will listen
And some who won't
That even though they dread that yearly test
GO ANYWAY.
For that is the only way
To stop the creeping tiger in its tracks.
We pray for a cure,
But until that day,
You will know us,
We will be wearing pink.

2014